The Canadian Aircraft Industry 1909 - 1929

For the first Alan H. MacDonald Memorial Lecture, explore the forgotten birth of the Canadian aircraft industry in Baddeck, Nova Scotia and its incredible growth during the First World War. Find out why it did not survive the postwar era and how it re-emerged in strength before the Great Depression.

Dr. Stéphane Guevremont holds a B.A. in History (McGill), a M.A. in War Studies (RMC) and a Ph.D. in Military Aviation & Industry from the U of C. He teaches European and 20th century history at Mount Royal and Calgary universities, as well as doing clips on CBC French Radio.
