The Sea King in Canadian Service John Orr

The Canadian Sikorsky CH-124 Sea King anti-submarine warfare helicopter has served Canada and Canadians with distinction since its arrival at Shearwater, Nova Scotia in August 1963 to its eventual retirement at Patricia Bay, British Columbia in December 2018. Join us as retired Colonel John Orr (who had five operational tours on the Sea King) relates the fascinating but little-known story of an aircraft and the people who persevered in supporting, maintaining, and flying her for more than half a century.
